INFORMATION OVERLOAD Parental QUESTions of an IT-guy

István is an IT guy working with computers and data since 2004. What's more important for this talk that he is a dad, too. (That comes with the entitlement to say "dad jokes" at home.) He's a student of Rudolf Steiner's spiritual science and has been working on a twofold goal: understanding the world of computers from a spiritual perspective and understanding anthroposophy based on his knowledge of the digital world. The theme he would like to explore this time is based on his journey integrating all these three personas and on having many questions as a father of a high-schooler in this fast-paced, overloaded digital world we have around us. It will not be an overly technical presentation but much more his take on the situation from social, philosophical and spiritual perspectives.
